Sébastien Thévoux-Chabuel joins Aecus Partners' investment team

Sébastien Thévoux-Chabuel has joined Aecus Partners' investment team as a Portfolio Manager for the firm's European equity strategy, alongside Arnaud Cosserat and Alistair Wittet. A seasoned sustainability specialist, Sébastien will also lead the firm's corporate culture research and shareholder engagement strategy. The addition to the team comes ahead of the upcoming launch of the firm's Irish UCITS public funds [1].

Sébastien has over 26 years' industry experience in roles spanning portfolio management, responsible investment and sell-side company analysis. He started his career with DWS as a buy-side analyst specialising in technology companies and then Crédit Agricole as a Portfolio Manager responsible for a global technology fund. After roles with ODDO Securities and Groupama Asset Management extending into the responsible investment domain, he became Head of Responsible Investment at Comgest from 2013-2024 and was a co-lead Portfolio Manager of several European and Global equity portfolios.

Sébastien Thévoux-Chabuel said, "I am excited to join the team at Aecus Partners. While it's a new chapter for me, it's on very familiar ground with colleagues I've known for over a decade. I feel a great sense of alignment in our approach. Aecus' overarching pursuit of equity, fairness and patience in the investment world are values that resonate with me both as an investor, and personally. I also admire the determination to maintain a boutique-sized operation, where team sizes are small and decision making is nimble."

CEO Arnaud Cosserat said, "Sébastien is a key addition to the investment team. He brings an essential ingredient of our long-term strategy, with his specialist knowledge in corporate culture. Having already worked with Sébastien for over a decade, Alistair and I are looking forward to hitting the ground running on the European portfolios. We have long admired his ability to deep dive into company research and to identify what might make, or break, a long-term growth story."

A French national, Sébastien graduated from the ESCP Business School in Paris in 1997, holds a post-graduate degree in financial engineering from Sorbonne University and is a SFAF (Société Française des Analystes Financiers) charterholder. He is completing an Executive PhD at Dauphine PSL focusing on "effective shareholder engagement" and is a professor of Sustainable Finance at a number of Paris business schools.

The appointment of Sébastien Thévoux-Chabuel marks the second senior investment hire by Aecus Partners in 2025, with one further investment hire planned over the coming 12 months.

About Aecus Partners

Aecus (ay-kus) Partners is an investment boutique managing concentrated European and Global equity portfolios. Based in Paris, the firm is employee-owned and was founded in 2024 by a senior team of four former colleagues. The founders believe in a core set of values – the word Aecus denotes patience, integrity, fairness. Their focus is on delivering attractive long-term returns to clients, with a transparent and simple business model.

With initial seed capital of €100m, Aecus Partners offers segregated account management and plans to launch an Irish UCITS public fund offering in 2025. The team is focused on managing concentrated, long-term oriented portfolios of exceptional businesses that can grow for decades. They believe that persistence matters more than speed, focusing on durable franchises that maintain healthy relationships with stakeholders.
